The
YOUNG MAN AND THE WORLD

By ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, U. S. Senator from Indiana. 12mo, Ornamental Cloth, $1.50 net. Postage additional.

This is a book which will go into every home where there is a son and a mother. Hundreds of letters in regard to it have been received by the publishers from all over the country.

Plowboy at twelve; logger at fourteen; college graduate at twenty-three, plainsman, law-clerk, lawyer; United States Senator at thirty-six—that is what Senator Beveridge, poor and without a bill, has done by sheer pluck and hard work.

This book is a talk with the young man about the young man of the young man's country by its most prominent young man.

It is concentrated common sense. It does not preach, scold nor advise tiresomely. It reads like friends talking together. It is as forcible, vigorous, and healthy as the man himself.

THE NEW RILEY BOOK

O' CHEER

BY

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

Uniform with Child-Rhymes, Farm-Rhymes and Love-Lyrics

A collection of the favorites of Mr. Riley's poems of gladness, content, and consolation.

"Songs o' Cheer" is one of the most beautiful books of poetry ever issued. If possible it excels in subject and form the charm and beauty of its predecessors in the "Deer Creek" volumes of Mr. Riley's poems named above.

David Graham Phillips's Great New Novel

THE DELUGE

Mr Phillips's new novel is important to every fiction-lover because it grips the attention in a vise of steel. It is important to every patriotic American because it lays absolutely bare the financial dilemma toward which the country has drifted.

"This shall be," says the narrator at the beginning of the story, "a cross-section out of the very heart of our life to-day, with its big and bold energies and passions, the swiftest and intensest life ever lived by the human race."

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS, author of "The Cost," "The Plum Tree," etc.

The Travelling Thirds

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Armed with Baedekers, the Moultons resolve to include Spain in their European trip even if they have to travel third-class. So the party start off together, but soon Puck and Cupid begin their devilments and work midsummer madness among them. For three-fourths of the way there is no end of fun and mirth in the sayings and doings of the frequently shocked Moultons in a land of brigands and fierce matadors, then the love-story swings out into the open and is carried to a swift and passionate climax. The close is something of a surprise, and is achieved by a bold stroke of imagination.

The Pleasant Tragedies of Childhood

Drawings by F. Y. CORY

Verses by BURGESS JOHNSON

Miss Cory's humorous drawings of children are popular everywhere. This series of drawings in black and tint represent typical mirthful phases in the lives of little tots which will appeal to every father and mother. Each is accompanied by merry little rhymes by Burgess Johnson.

Mrs. Raffles

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS

Mr. Bangs has most amusingly parodied the adventures of the celebrated Raffles in narrating the burglaries in which, after Raffles' death, his widow is concerned. How Andrew Carnegie is induced to donate a library to Rafflehurst-by-the-Sea; how Mrs. Raffles obtains a munificent loan on the strength of a few Steel bonds, and at last runs off with Mrs. Constant Scrappe's husband, make the most laughable narrative. It is all done in Mr. Bangs' best vein with many little flings at the foibles of the fashionable world.

JAMES M. LUDLOW'S NEW NOVEL

ILLUSTRATED
CLOTH, $1.50SIR RAOULAuthor of
"DEBORAH"
Etc.

A Story of the Theft of an Empire

Dr. Ludlow's novel is a drama of inner conscience, as well as a thrilling story of outward adventure, and is a worthy companion to his successes, "The Captain of the Janizaries" and "Deborah."

The great plot of Sir Raoul and the Romance of the Lady Renée are based upon the historical facts concerning the miscarriage of that crusade of the XIIIth century which was diverted from conquering the Moslems to the capture of the Christian city of Constantinople. The love story that runs through the whole gives a picture of a woman whom one can never forget.

An Illustrated Record in Four Volumes by

RICHARD GARNETT, C.B., LL.D., and

EDMUND GOSSE, M.A., LL.D.

*Volume I. From the Beginnings to the Age of Henry
VIII.* By RICH-ARD GARNETT,
C.B., LL.D.

The ripest achievement of two recognized authorities, one a foremost scholar, the other one of the most distinguished critics of the day.

*Volume II. From the Age of
Henry VIII. to the Age of Milton.* By RICHARD GAR-
NETT, C.B., LL.D.,
and EDMUND GOS-
SE, M.A., LL.D.

In its scrupulous exactness the work does not lose sight of the fascinating human side of its subject. It tells not only who the writer was and what he wrote, but what he looked like, where he lived, who were his teachers, who his pupils, what his handwriting was and how he appeared in caricature to his contemporaries.

Volume III. From the Age of Milton to the Age of Johnson. By EDMUND
GOSSE, M.A.,
LL.D.

The illustrations are a supremely important feature of the work. One critic remarks: "To turn these pages is like visiting a museum of old manuscripts and paintings, and it is needless to say what a powerful instrument this is in making the subject vivid and raising the interest." It is almost impossible to find a page without some document of great interest or value.

*Volume IV. From the Age of Johnson to the Age of Tenny-
son.* By EDMUND
GOSSE, M.A.,
LL.D.

The appeal of this work must not be misunderstood. It is not confined to any class or section. It is impossible for any one to open it and not find something to hold him interested as few story books can.

"Never before was a popular history of literature so carefully planned or so satisfactorily completed."—The Review of Reviews.

Illustrated with Colour Plates, Photogravures, Wood-engravings, and many Lithographic Facsimiles; also a large number of the best accredited portraits of English Authors, Autographs, Title-pages, Caricatures, etc., etc.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. announce "Ben Blair: a story of a plainsman," by Will Lillibridge, for October 21, and "Sword of the Old Frontier," by Randall Parrish, for October 28. Of the first they printed 15,000 and of the second 25,000, and they already see the need of a second printing order in both cases.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week "At the Emperor's Wish," a Japanese story by Oscar King Davis, which the publishers have illustrated with Japanese designs and colored pictures; also, Kirk Monroe's postponed juvenile, entitled "The Outcast Warrior." On October 15 the house will issue de luxe editions of Kipling's "The Seven Seas" and Gilbert Parker's "The Seats of the Mighty."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "The Companionship of Books and Other Papers," by Frederick Rowland Marvin, composed of literary and instructive essays on many subjects; "What to Have For Breakfast," by Olive Green; and two novels, one entitled "Our Best Society," which is so very outspoken a satire on the prominent people of the day that the author's name is withheld for the present; and the other called "Under Guiding Stars," which is a Massachusetts story of the end of the nineteenth century by Agnes Blake Poor, author of "Boston Neighbors."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "The Travelling Thirds," by Gertrude Atherton, in which the Moultons decide to see Spain, even if they travel third class. Puck and Cupid meet them early in their trip, and the story is told with the author's fine technique to its surprising end. They have also just ready "The Pleasant Tragedies of Childhood," consisting of verses by Burges Johnson and drawings by F. Y. Cory; and "Mrs. Raffles," in which John Kendrick Bangs has amusingly parodied the adventures of the celebrated Raffles and given many little flings at the foibles of the fashionable world.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just ready "Celebrated Crimes of the Russian Court," a translation into English, for the first time, of Dumas's "En Russie," which was written just after the trip through Russia which Dumas made at the expense of the French Government, full of keen observations on the history and everyday life of the Russians; "Cathedrals and Churches of the Rhine," the new volume in the Cathedral Series, by Francis Miltoun, with illustrations and decorations by Blanche McManus; "The Art of the National Gallery," by Julia DeW. Addison, the new volume of the Art Galleries Series; also, "Red Fox," the new animal story by Professor Charles G. D. Roberts, with illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Deluge," by David Graham Phillips, which cleverly deals with the great financial problems which every patriotic American knows are seriously menacing this country; and on October 15 they will bring out their chief holiday book, which is again provided by James Whitcomb Riley and Will Vawter. It is entitled "Songs o' Cheer," and is a selection of the poet's favorite songs of gladness and consolation, beautified with nearly 100 Hoosier pictures of the artist who catches Riley's spirit so remarkably. Also just ready are "The Best Policy," life insurance stories by Elliott Flower; and "Banjo Talks," poems of negro life by Anne Virginia Culbertson, illustrated from photographs by Mary Morgan Kepp and Heustis Pratt Cook.

The author, as the first General Superintendent of Education for the Philippines, had special opportunities for learning the actual conditions by visits to practically every part of the archipelago and by conferences with Filipinos as well as Americans, both civil and military. Trips to Java, China, Japan and India have, furthermore, given him standards of comparison. After a general introduction the geography and history of the Islands are separately treated; then follows much information concerning climate, public health, the people, their superstitions and religion, the native and foreign government, education, etc. Mr. Atkinson is optimistic concerning the future of the Philippines, though he thinks "the Filipinos are incapable of self-government" at present, and that "granting independence in any near future would be a great error."

Montefano, a little Italian hill-village, is the scene. Donna Bianca, the heiress to the village estates, is brought here by her step-mother to prevent her marrying a young Roman engineer not of noble birth. Her step-mother's brother aspires to her hand and the house priest, a man of no character, aids him in his plots. The village priest, an ideal character, comes to the rescue. The rents on the estates went up; the peasants rose, and a most dramatic riot is quelled by the village priest. He learns all the facts and helps the young people to lasting happiness.

Baker, Louise Regina. Mrs. Pinner's little girl. Phil., G: W. Jacobs & Co., [1905. Ag.] c. 6-232 p. il. D. (Little maid ser.) cl., †$1.

The story of a little family left orphans and penniless. They have a cousin, Cynthia, who comes from Boston to look after them, but she is very poor herself. The best she can do is to find good homes for them all. Mary the elder, a girl of ten years, is adopted by the Pinner, rich people who have lost their own child of that age, and who are very good to her. Mary learns to love them, but is never happy until she gathers together again her little brothers and sisters.

Baker, Moses Nelson. Sewerage and sewage purification. 2d ed., rev. and enl. N. Y.,

- D. Van Nostrand Co., 1905. c. 4+152 p. S. (Van Nostrand's science ser., no. 18.) bds., 50 c.
- In the nearly ten years that have elapsed since the appearance of the first edition of this little book, the newer and so-called bacterial processes of sewage treatment have been announced, passed through an experimental stage and come into extensive use. Meanwhile the author has improved many opportunities to visit American sewage purification works, old and new, and during 1904 spent several months abroad, chiefly in Great Britain, visiting sewage works. As a consequence, the section which deals with the purification of sewage has been largely rewritten and extended.

The separate histories of three Southern girls in war-time. The adventures of one take place on the Atlantic Coast and the sea, and her lover is a sailor. The Mississippi River furnishes the background for the adventures of the second maiden, who marries in spite of herself a Yankee non-combatant from whom she flees, not to be won again till the fall of Vicksburg. The last of the trio has a lover who is a Southerner through and through and a captain of cavalry under Stonewall Jackson. While romance is the motif of these three stories, historical events play an important part.

Caffyn, Mrs. Kathleen Mannington. ["Tota," pseud.] Patricia: a mother. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [S.] 2+368 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Study of mother love—one woman blind adoring, idealizing; the other, forgiving, comprehending and unselfish. Patricia, an Australian girl, brimming over with vitality, beautiful and trusting, has married an Englishman of irreproachable character and many acres. Years later she finds out he has deeply wronged her; yet to spare his mother, she keeps silent even after her husband's death and the reading of his iniquitous will wherein he protects himself at his wife's expense. But Patricia also has an only son and it is her effort to gain his love and confidence, and at the same time keep peace with her saintly though misjudging mother-in-law, that the story records. County neighbors play an important part in the history.

Carey, Rosa Nouchette. The household of Peter: a novel. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. [S.] c. 453 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Peter was a doctor of thirty, in a little English country town. His household consisted of three maiden sisters, all devoted to him but occasionally shocked at his rather democratic ways among his patients. One of these leaves him a small fortune and leaves the rest to a faithful housekeeper. Love comes to Peter and his household and finally four happy couples are accounted for in a story full of love to all that is good and true.

Chambers, Rob. W. The reckoning. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [S.] c. 20+386 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The fourth of the series of novels devoted to the history of the old New York frontier in the days of the American war for Independence. The third story is not yet published. For notice of first, "Cardigan,"

See P. W., Weekly Record, Sept. 21, '01; for second, "Maid at arms," October 4, '02. The hero of this story is a spy in New York risking a traitor's dishonorable death for the cause. He is discovered by a man bent on seeing General Clinton to submit a plan for the defeat of Washington, but a woman stands between them and he is given a chance of flight. The story is strikingly romantic but rests upon historic facts.

The fern allies, by reason of their curious forms and often great abundance, seldom fail to attract the attention of the student of plants, but their identification has always proved more or less of a puzzle to beginners. Like the ferns, they bear neither flowers nor seeds, and at first glance seem to offer few points by which they may be distinguished. The species are usually included in botanical manuals, but the necessary brief and technical descriptions have tended to discourage rather than to aid the novice. In reality, however, most of the species are easily identified, and it is one of the purposes of this book to point out how this may be done.—Preface.

Cook, Theodore Andrea. Old Provence. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [S.] c. 2 v., 16+348; 13+445 p. il. D. cl., $4 net.
As in his previous work on "Old Touraine," the author has here written not only a history of Provence, but also a descriptive account of its towns and antiquities with their legendary and romantic associations. The first volume is "devoted to the Phœnicians, Greeks and Romans who have left traces upon the soil of France that are as remarkable as any to be found in Italy;" the second brings the story of Provence through the transition period to the year 1484 when Provence, ceasing to be an independent kingdom, was ceded to France.

Cooley, T. McIntyre. Michigan: a history of governments; with a supplementary chapter by C. Moore. [New ed.] Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. c. '85, '05. 10+402 p. map, D. (American commonwealths ser.; ed. by Horace E. Scudder.) cl., $1.25.

During the quarter of a century since Judge Cooley completed this history of Michigan students have given much attention to the early history of the Northwest. Although a large mass of details has been gathered to enrich the story, little has been discovered to change the general outlines as here sketched. Mr. Charles Moore has taken advantage of the opportunity now presented to extend the record of the State, by means of a supplementary chapter covering the most important events in the history of Michigan during the last part of the nineteenth century, and setting forth the conditions that prevail at the opening of the twentieth century.

"The consumer is between the upper and the nether millstone." This is the motto printed on the cover of this study of the economic future of this country and the world at large. The consumer, says Mr. Cooper, is ground between labor and capital when they disagree, between overproduction and the present-day efforts to control it when it is too late, between competition and its restraint by trusts, which, he holds, are but a means to an end, as feudalism was a means to reach monarchism, and monarchism a necessary step toward the rule of the people. What this author seeks is the organization of the consumer, as capital has already been organized and labor.

Curtis, Olin Alfred. The Christian faith; personally given in a system of doctrine. N. Y., Eaton & Mains, [1905.] c. 11+541 p. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

Author is Professor of Systematic Theology in the Drew Theological Seminary. He says in his preface: "Neither in claim nor in spirit is this book dogmatic. As indicated in several ways by the book itself, there is no attempt to speak the final word, no aim to be, or to become, 'the recognized authority' of any church, or of any school, or of any man. After years of preparatory waiting I have, I believe, caught an important vision of the Christian faith as an organic whole of doctrine, and I am eager to help other men to catch the same vision. In reading the book, many peculiarities of scheme and method will be discovered; but the main clue to all can be found in one thing, namely, in the junction of the two ideas, personal responsibility and racial solidarity. . . . In this peculiar junction there may be, I sometimes hope, a fair mediation between Arminianism and Calvinism."

Dix, Beulah Marie. The fair maid of Graystones. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. [S.] c. 5+351 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author's knowledge of the stress of the time of the Cavaliers and Roundheads is again shown in this story that is laid in a great country house called Graystones, situated in Suffolkshire, England. The time is 1648 just after the surrender of the Cavalier stronghold of Colchester to the Parliamentary forces. The hero is Cavalier, the maiden Roundhead. The form of fiction makes attractive the thoroughly authentic history.

Donnell, Annie Hamilton. Rebecca Mary; il. by Elizabeth Shippen Green. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [S.] c. 4+194 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Old New England is the scene of a succession of episodes in the life of the child Rebecca Mary, brought up in good old fashion by her Aunt Olivia. They were Plummers and the Plummers never showed their feelings. Aunt Olivia was upheld by her sense of duty, Rebecca by a white rooster, her only source of sympathy. Warm human nature and loving hearts at last subdue even the Plummer characteristics. About a child but written for grown people.

This little girl went from Maine to San Francisco more than fifty years ago. The city then was primitive enough, but even in her short life there she saw it grow to something like its present proportions. Laverne Westbury has a checkered life. Left an orphan when scarcely more than a child, she is adopted by an old friend of her mother's and taken to California. After some years her father, whom she thought dead, discovers her. He has made a fortune and married again, and carries Laverne to London, where she narrowly escapes marrying a lord.

An old saddle horse is the spokesman, and the other horses in the stable his audience. He tells the love story of his master, a wounded major of the Northern Army, showing how the human romance would have gone away but for the interposition of horse sense and dumb tricks.
- Forman, Justus Miles. The Island of Enchantment; il. by Howard Pyle. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [S.] c. 5+106 p. O. cl., $1.75.
Romantic episode in Venetian history. When the Huns appeared before Venice, in 1335, bent on pillage and conquest, a young nobleman was dispatched in command of three galleys to drive out the invaders from the neighboring island of Arbe. Landed on the island a prisoner, a young girl was brought before him and acknowledged herself to be the hated Princess Yaga, the leader of the Huns. But both man and girl immediately developed an all-consuming love for each other, which involved them in a series of surprising adventures leading to a wholly unexpected climax. The book is embellished by full-page colored illustrations, and there are decorations in tint on each page, and artistic binding.

Some twelve years ago Professor Goodnow wrote a work entitled "Comparative administrative law." The great interest in administrative subjects, now so manifest in this country, has led him since to believe that a fuller treatment of American administrative conditions than was possible in a book devoted to a comparison of different administrative systems was desirable. This is his reason for preparing this work. It follows the same plan adopted in his "Comparative administrative law," retaining in a number of instances the language used in the former work. In the main, however, the portions of the former work dealing with American conditions have been greatly amplified, if not absolutely rewritten.

A conclusion to the author's "She." Several years after the return of Ludwig Horace Holly and his ward, Leo Vincey, from their extraordinary adventures recorded in "She," the two men receive a summons to start again in search of the elusive queen Ayesha, or She. For sixteen years their quest carries them through the mountains of Central Asia; they meet with almost insuperable difficulties, natural and supernatural, but at last their goal is reached. The story of these years of wandering is here given in the words of Ludwig Horace Holly.

The interest centres entirely in Ora Pinsent a popular English actress with a husband somewhere in the background and Ashley Mead, a barrister of few briefs, who falls in love with her. The study of Ora's character is a most careful one. She is only met in private life, with her friends and admirers, where she seems to be as much of an actress as on the stage. Her excitable, superficial nature and her love for dramatic situations, which often carry her to the very brink of immorality, are illustrated through a wealth of witty dialogue, and worldly philosophy. Ashley Mead is a good type of the modern society man, not without noble impulses. Ora sacrifices to her love of the stage both friends and lover.

"The chief idea underlying the preparation of this volume has been to present to the people of Michigan a true account of the life and work of John D. Pierce, our first superintendent of Public instruction. Almost seventy years have gone since he entered upon his educational work, and more than twenty years since his death, and as yet no adequate study of his career has appeared. . . . Falling as Mr. Pierce's labors in education did in the period coincident with the beginnings of our statehood, it has been thought desirable as an introduction to his life and work to offer some preliminary observations concerning our national and local educational inheritances, as well as to sketch briefly the course of Michigan history up to the close of the Territorial days."—Preface.

Hutten, Bettina, (Baroness v.) He and Hecuba: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [O.] c. 4+299 p. D. cl., $1.50.

King Hardy, an English clergyman, in his youth had loved an Italian woman and unintentionally killed her husband. Later he marries an English girl, and between poverty, pride, numerous children and an incompetent wife, he finds life a grim struggle to which remorse for the unsuspected tragedy of his youth is an added burden. At the home of his friends, Lord and Lady Yarrow, he meets a beautiful Spanish woman, supposed to be a widow, but whom he finds out is the wife of Lord Yarrow's dearest friend. Driven by poverty, Hardy turns the story of his early folly into a novel, which, published anonymously as "He and Hecuba," becomes the book of the hour, denounced for its immorality while admired for its power. But the Spanish woman, recognizing Hardy as its author and original, becomes madly infatuated with the man of the book. Hardy, wearied out with life's struggle, hating and distrusting himself, loses his life in a diphtheria epidemic, and the woman meets her deserved end.

Miss Cynthia at the age of thirty-five was informed by her physician that she had only one more year to live. She had lived a narrow life, tormented by a New England conscience and controlled first by her mother and then by an old family servant. She had plenty of means but lived a very frugal life. She decides to follow her own inclinations for the last year of her life. She shows her natural generous nature, makes all about her happy and finds herself growing stronger day by day. Finally, an old lover, now a doctor, takes her into his keeping and completes her cure.

Knowles, Rob. E. St. Cuthbert's: a novel. N. Y. and Chic., Revell, 1905. c. 3-339 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author is in charge of the largest Presbyterian church in Canada, which is in Galt, one of the smaller towns. The story, told in first person, is of a call to the parish of St. Cuthbert's where he has some up-hill work owing to his being of Irish descent. His wife and daughter are ideal women and the daughter's love story strongly influences her father's work in the parish. The details of parish life among orthodox Scotchmen in Canada are told with humor and pathos.

A little book based upon a correspondence recently published in Germany that was carried on for many years between Richard Wagner and Mathilde Wesendonk. Frau Wesendonk is said to have inspired Wagner's most impassioned creation, his "Isolde," and to have been his confidant in all his musical inspirations. Gustav Kobbé tells his story through a selection of these letters and journals, to which he gives an introduction and the connecting narrative. It is a most romantic episode in the life of a great genius, and has stirred the musical world strongly.

While this work is a continuation of the author's previous volume (covering the years 1513-1561), the subject has been treated as a distinct episode in the history of the Spanish colonial enterprises, so that the story is complete in itself, irrespective of its relation to the preceding volume. The work embraces the period of the French settlement in Florida under Ribaut and Laudonniere, their expulsion of Pedro Menendez de Aviles, and the foundation of the first permanent Spanish colony. In addition to the relation of the events in Florida, the volume contains a review of the Spanish policy with regard to French aggression in North America, and the diplomatic relations between Philip II. and Catherine de' Medici in respect to their conflicting claims to Florida, both previous and subsequent to the massacre of the Huguenots by the Spaniards. It also gives the history of the various missions in Florida, South Carolina, and Virginia undertaken at the instigation of Spain.

Mme. Loyson is the wife of Père Hyacinthe Loyson, the leader of the Catholic reform movement in France. During 1894-6 two journeys in the Orient were made by them, in the course of which they visited Algiers, Tunis, Egypt, and the Holy Land. These journeys, taken primarily for pleasure and recuperation, became inspired by the higher purpose of a reconciliation of races and religions. Père Hyacinthe and his wife mixed freely with the Mohammedans, studied their customs and faith, and held conferences with their leading men, so that they might ascertain the points of similarity between the religion of Islam and Christianity, with a view to a broader toleration and permanent peace between Christians and Mohammedans. Mme. Loyson's book is therefore both a record of travel and a study of Mohammedanism.

The author in his preface says: "The stand-point from which this book is written is suggested by the title of the series. I regard Mohammed as a great man, who solved a political problem of appalling difficulty—the construction of a state and an empire out of the Arab tribes. I have endeavored, in recounting the mode in which he accomplished this, to do justice to his intellectual ability and to observe toward him the respectful attitude which his greatness deserves, but otherwise this book does not aim at being either an apology or an indictment. Indeed neither sort of work is now required."—Bibliography (3 p.)

Marshall, Archibald. The house of Merrilees. Bost., Herbert B. Turner & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 4-387 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is laid in the English lake district. A young boy living alone with his mother and a little girl the mother had adopted is puzzled all through his school and college life about the relationship of a man who takes full charge of his mother's affairs and of whom his mother seems to stand in awe. He becomes a barrister and is set to unravel the mystery of the "House of Merrilees" and finds it closely connected with his own life history. The plot is intricate and seasoned novel readers are kept mystified to the end.

Martin, Mrs. Helen Reimensnyder. Sabina: a story of the Amish. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5-233 p. D. cl., $1.25.

As in her previous story, "Tillie: a Mennonite maid," the author has found her characters among the Pennsylvania Germans, but in this case they are of the Amish sect—people quite as uneducated, narrow-minded, and stolid, but judging from Sabina's family, less hard and unloving than the Mennonites. This is a pathetic little love story of eighteen-year-old Sabina who comes in contact with an artist from the outside world and is made dissatisfied and unhappy with her life. A face seen in a vision plays an important part in the story.

- The story opens in Southern California some years back. A settler, almost ruined, "strikes oil" upon his property and all looks bright until the Standard Oil machinations lead to the loss of everything, even the settler's life. His son arrives in New York to earn a living and meets the head of the oil combination who offers him a fine position, as he has brains; the one requisite for success in the intricate scheme of monopoly. The son refuses and fights all his life to kill the giant of monopoly by opposing the giant of true American independence. Many facts of recent business transactions are realistically worked into an intricate plot.*

- A romance of the French Revolution, 1792-3. The "Scarlet Pimpernel" was the mysterious chief of a daring band of young Englishmen who worked to rescue the Emigré nobles from the French Terrorists. The scene shifts between Paris and London. The French heroine is as brave and enthusiastic as the English hero. The author also produced her story as a play in London, and the illustrations are photographs of the scenes and actors. She dedicates her novel to Julia Neilson and Fred Terry who made its success as a play.*

At a water carnival in Massachusetts, Floyd Halkett saves the life of Stewart Lee. Later the young men go to Harvard University and Stewart resents all advice from Halkett, always bearing him a grudge because he thinks Halkett presumes on having saved his life. The boys love the same girl and Stewart Lee marries her. Halkett's grandfather has made a fortune in steel manufacturing. The young man enters the works at the lowest round and works up. Incidentally the story tells much of labor and capital and modern monopoly methods. The climax is brought about by Stewart Lee who has become an architect and has stooped to dishonest trickery.

A sequel to "Mrs. Tree" (July 12, 1902) laid in the seaboard New England village that was the scene of "Geoffrey Strong" (August 17, 1901.) At the age of 102 the long widowed sea-captain's wife, who had been autocrat of the little town for most of the life-time of her neighbors, died quietly and left a will that equally surprised those who benefited and those who were disappointed. The consequences of this will affected the lives of many characters described with insight and humor. Old fashioned love triumphs after much tribulation.

The history of carbonic acid in medicine is very little known. At least text-books hardly speak of it. The material for the historical sketch here given the writer found in great part in French and German books not translated into English. Among the transactions of the Congress of Balneologists, which met in Berlin from March 9 to March 13, 1905, perhaps the most important were the papers read by Homberger and Fellner on the effect of carbonic-acid baths. Dr. Rose availed himself of these publications; they reached him just before he had finished his manuscript.

- Squire, Frances, [Mrs. Frances Boardman Squire Potter.] The Ballingtons: a novel. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 4+445 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
The story of two marriages. In one the husband was rich but allowed his wife no money for herself and forced her to stoop to deception to aid her mother and sister in their dire distress. In the other the woman was rich, but when she could not make her husband leave his position as bank-clerk and live on her income, became reckless and almost lost her reputation for one of the Ballingtons. How far a husband or wife must respect each other's individuality and grant each other freedom in the marriage relation is the author's study. The scene is laid in New York State.

For a quarter of a century Dr. Street passed his summers at Southwest Harbor, Mount Desert, becoming thoroughly familiar with the beautiful island, and by acquaintance with the permanent residents of Mount Desert and neighboring islands learning a great deal of local history and legend. This first-hand knowledge has been supplemented by exhaustive study of letters and documents relating to the early history of our country. At the time of his death, in 1904, Dr. Street had not entirely completed this work, so that it fell to the share of Samuel E. Eliot to put it into shape for publication. Herein are described the discovery of Mount Desert in 1604 by Champlain; the French Jesuit settlements on the island some years later; then the English occupation after the French and Indian War, and subsequent history as pioneer colony and summer resort. Written by the wife of Bayard Taylor who was the daughter of Hansen the noted mathematician and astronomer, Mrs. Taylor's life with her husband in Europe and America brought her into contact with the brightest minds of her time. Her book abounds with anecdotes of such famous figures as the Brownings, Thackeray, the Stoddards, George William Curtis, Boker, Aldrich, the Warner and Cary sisters, Horace Greeley, Bryant, Stedman, Swinburne, Freytag, Bismarck, General Grant, and so on; and naturally contains the most intimate picture yet published of Bayard Taylor and his work.

The author is an English barrister who wrote "Secrets of the courts of Europe" in 1897; and "Secret history of to-day: the revelations of a diplomatic spy," in 1904, both showing prophetic insight into the problems of the monarchs of Europe. In this story the author makes clear the sinking of the English fishing schooners by the Baltic fleet of Russia and brings in all kinds of events that seemed hallucinations when the story appeared serially, but which have since come true in startling manner.

Warner, G: H. The Jewish spectre. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 6+377 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

A study of the Jew of history and of to-day. The author is an American and thinks the Jew will amalgamate with all the other foreigners in time. He thinks the religion of the Jews will resolve itself in time with all other religions into the one lasting religion which he words: "The human being is the thing." What the Jew really was and is and his contribution to civilization are put with effectiveness, clearness and humor. The author claims that every theology separated from state control works toward the same end, the survival of the truth regardless of fixed doctrine.

Wells, Herbert G: Kipps: the story of a simple soul. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. c. 6+479 p. D. cl., $1.50.

In a little rural spot in England Kipps was brought up by an aunt and uncle until at the age of fourteen he was apprenticed for seven years to a draper in a little town. The old system of "bound help" is described in detail. Kipps inherits a fortune and is launched into society. A girl captures him and tries to educate him in the frills and fads of modern social circles. Kipps does not respond, the engagement is broken and a girl of his own class and from his old home finally makes him happy. He has no aspirations higher than a shop. He deals in second-hand books as merchandise and other articles needed by average people. Kipps' views of life afford the author room for many facts of modern social inanity.

Whitcomb, Charlotte. The Whitcomb family in America: a biographical genealogy with a chapter on our English forbears "by the name of Whetcombe." Minneapolis, Minn., [Charlotte Whitcomb,] 1904. 621 p. il. por. map, facsim., 4°, buckram, $7; hf. mor., $10.

White, Eliza Orne. An only child; il. by Katherine Pyle. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. c. 6+167 p. D. cl., $1.

Lois Page was a very unhappy little girl because she had no one to play with, being an only child. Her especial friend—Daisy, the daughter of the minister—had left the town with her father, when the story opens, and Lois is in the depths of woe. But consolation comes with the new minister and his flock of nice boys and girls, with whom Lois has "lots of fun."

Whitney, Caspar. Jungle trails and jungle people; travel, adventure and observation in the far east. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [S.] c. 15+310 p. O. cl., $3 net.

Besides thrilling stories of adventure, with the big game of the far east—that is India, Sumatra, Malay, and Siam—information abounds relative to the natives, their lives, customs, etc. Nearly all the illustrations are from photographs taken by the author.

Wiborg, Frank. A commercial traveller in South America: being the experiences and impressions of an American business man on a trip through Panama, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, the Argentine and Brazil. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1905. c. 26+159 p. il. D. cl., $1 net.

The author's route lay across Panama; thence, stopping at frequent ports, down the western coast of South America; over the Andes to the Argentine and by water up the eastern coast, thus visiting the chief countries of South America. Aside from interesting observations of people, places and customs, there is an informing chapter on the existing trade relations between South America and England, Germany and France, and the slight part the United States plays in the South American markets.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas Smith, [now Mrs. G. Christopher Riggs.] Rose o' the river; il. by G. Wright. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 5+177 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

The Saco Valley, Maine, is the scene of a pretty love story. The heroine is the village belle, whose vanity leads her for a time away from the man who sincerely loves her. The hero is a logger, although a college man. Logging and jam-breaking on the Saco river play important parts in the narrative. The minor characters are quaintly humorous, realistic portraits of New England village types.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 7, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE HARPER RE-REORGANIZATION.

FIVE years ago the Harper corporation was reorganized for the second time along the lines of the drastic methods of "high finance" on a financial basis which Colonel Harvey, the new president of the corporation, declared to be "absolutely impregnable," "equitable in every respect," and "assuring the ultimate payment of every dollar of indebtedness in full." Previous to this date the embarrassments into which the old firm of Harper & Brothers had fallen had been temporarily relieved by a loan from J. P. Morgan & Co. of $850,000, and a Harper & Brothers corporation had been formed which issued $3,000,000 first mortgage bonds as security for the Morgan loan. This scheme of tying up the assets of the corporation at a valuation of $3,000,000 in security for a loan of $850,000 produced the natural result, and a second reorganization was worked out, under a committee representing J. P. Morgan & Co. and the banks involved. This plan provided for $2,000,000 (instead of $3,000,000) first mortgage five per cent. bonds, of which $1,250,000 was turned over to J. P. Morgan & Co. as collateral for the $850,000 loan, $80,000 paid to secured creditors, and $170,000 placed in the treasury of the corporation to provide working capital; for $2,000,000 income bonds (to pay one per cent. for two years, two per cent. for three years and five per cent. thereafter) to be delivered in unstated amount to general creditors, the unstated excess to remain in the corporation treasury; and for $2,000,000 capital stock to be paid to "present stockholders"

(of the preceding corporation) or to Colonel Harvey for his services as president for five years. It was stated by Colonel Harvey that the plan provided a working capital in cash of $175,000, supplemented by $170,000 treasury bonds. The hopes based upon this plan have not been realized, and but one per cent. per year has been paid upon income bonds.

On the expiration of the five-year period, September 30, 1905, the reorganization committee issued under date of September 25 a scheme for a still further reorganization, being the third, which is printed elsewhere. Comparison may be made with the earlier scheme of the same committee, printed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for February 24, 1900. The circular letter of the committee fails to give several important facts which are necessary for a judgment of the plan and the future prospects of the corporation under the proposed shape; for instance, it is not stated to what extent depreciation charges upon plant have been written off as operating expenses. It is stated, however, that the reorganized company "has prospered sufficiently" to pay out in cash in addition to operating disbursements the sum of $903,179.25—made up of $420,036.24 interest upon loans and the one per cent. on income bonds; $128,477.79 authors' royalties and taxes accrued under the old company; $154,531.37 other indebtedness incurred by the old company, whose liquidation in cash was necessitated, which it was difficult to trace in the former statement; and necessary additions to manufacturing plant costing $200,133.85. It is not stated whether this amount represents actual earnings or whether it was to some extent advanced from capital. The statement is made that the total indebtedness of the company other than income bonds can be liquidated at $1,370,161.78, "covering the entire amount stated in the reorganization plan" and also all accounts payable. As the secured indebtedness stated in the reorganization plan aggregated $930,000, there is an amount approximating $400,000, the nature of which, unless accounts payable, does not seem to be explained.

The committee's new plan proposes a new five per cent. first mortgage to the amount of $2,000,000 (in place of the $1,500,000), of which $1,500,000 are to be sold or exchanged to provide for or secure present indebtedness, and $500,000 left in the treasury for future requirements; and a new feature of $1,000,000 preferred stock, with non-cumulative dividends up to six per cent., for which the old creditors are to be asked to exchange their income bonds, on which it is declared no interest could be paid for many years to come, at the rate of fifty cents on the dollar, this compromise requiring $889,386.66, while of the balance, $53,363.20, is to be used to pay the additional one per cent. for three years which was not paid on the income bonds, a payment of interest from capital which is seriously open to criticism, and the remaining $57,250.14 is to remain as treasury stock for future use, this new class of preferred stock to have representation on the Board of Directors. Under this plan the capitalization and indebtedness of the company as reorganized will be the $2,000,000 stock which for five years has been in the hands of a voting trust holding it in the interest of Colonel Harvey, $942,149.86 issued preferred stock, and $1,500,000 five per cent. first mortgage bonds, providing further as working capital any excess of the bonds issued above amounts liquidated, which is not stated, and the unissued $500,000 first mortgage bonds, and $57,250.14 unissued preferred stock.

We have endeavored to translate the circular from the language of high finance into plain English, in comparison with the previous reorganization schemes, and for the present we prefer to let these facts speak for themselves.

PROPOSED READJUSTMENT OF THE AFFAIRS OF HARPER & BROTHERS.

THE following circular has been issued by the Harper & Brothers Reorganization Committee, consisting of Alexander E. Orr, chairman, William A. Nash, William M. Laffan, Stephen Baker and Augustine Smith:

To the Holders of Securities of Harper & Brothers (Incorporated):

The five years of operation of the business of Harper & Brothers, under the plan and agreement dated February 17, 1900, being about to expire on September 30, 1905, your committee begs to report that, under the executive direction of Mr. George Harvey as President, and of Messrs. Orr, Nash and Laffan as Finance and Advisory Committee, the reorganized company, without being obliged to raise new capital, has prospered sufficiently to pay out in cash, in addition to the disbursements required, in operation of the business, the sum of $903,179.25, as follows:

(1.) Authors' royalties accrued under the old company.....	$51,138 77
(2.) Taxes accrued under the old company, amounting to.....	77,339 02
(3.) Other indebtedness incurred by the old company, whose liquidation by cash was essential to the continuance of the business and reorganization expenses, amounting to....	154,531 37
(4.) Necessary additions to manufacturing plant, costing.....	200,133 85
(5.) Interest upon loans and income bonds, amounting to.....	420,036 24
Total.....	$903,179 25

It is not too much to say, in addition, that, despite its distressed condition at the time of voluntary liquidation, the company to-day is fully re-established in the confidence of the public, and has demonstrated a growing earning capacity eminently satisfactory.

Your committee, therefore, feels that the time has now come for a definite adjustment of securities upon a conservative and enduring basis.

The total indebtedness of the company, other than income bonds, can be liquidated at $1,370,161.78, that covering the entire amount stated in the reorganization plan and also all accounts payable.

It was provided in the original agreement that until the indebtedness secured by the outstanding mortgage bonds should be paid in full, and the bonds themselves cancelled, dividends upon the income bonds should not exceed two per cent. In view of the extraordinary payments out of net earnings to meet the heavy requirements under the reorganization plan, amounts equal to but one per cent. have been available for interest payments upon the income bonds. In order to secure an extension of the loans stated in the plan, it would be necessary to apply all net earnings, in excess of operating cost and interest, to payments on account of the principal of such indebtedness, so that no further payments of interest upon the income bonds could be anticipated for a considerable number of years.

In order to render net earnings immediately available for dividend purposes, your committee begs to submit a proposal designed to enable the company to cancel its outstanding mortgage bonds, by the sale of new first mortgage bonds, reserving in the treasury a sufficient number to meet the possible requirements of further expansion of business.

The proposal, in brief, is as follows:

1. That the Company make a new first mortgage for $2,000,000, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, to be represented by 2,000 bonds of $1,000 denomination, of which $1,500,000 par value are to be sold, or used in exchange, to provide for the security of present indebtedness and the cancellation of the present outstanding bonds and mortgage (any surplus to revert to the treasury for uses of the Company); the remaining $500,000 to be retained in the treasury for future requirements of the Company.

2. That the Company authorize an issue of $1,000,000 par value of new preferred stock entitled to non-cumulative dividends at the rate of six per cent. per annum, such stock to the extent of $889,386.66 par value to be issued in exchange for outstanding income bonds pro rata—i. e., at the rate of $100 par value of new preferred stock for $200 par value of present income bonds; $53,363.20 of new preferred stock to be delivered to the holders of income bonds to represent an additional one-per-cent. interest per annum upon such bonds for the past three years; the remaining $57,250.14 of preferred stock to remain in the treasury for future uses of the Company; the preferred stock to have representation upon the Board of Directors.

In the event of the adoption of this plan and the liquidation of its present indebtedness from the proceeds of a sale of $1,500,000 of the new bonds, the total interest charge upon the company would be $75,000; six per cent. upon the new preferred stock would amount to $56,564.99—a total of $131,564.99 per annum.

The management expresses confidence in the belief that the company will be able to earn and pay these amounts out of net earnings, after making adequate allowance for depreciation and providing requisite sums for maintenance of plant.

Your committee, recognizing the unvaryingly considerate attitude of J. P. Morgan & Co., recommends assent to this proposal, not merely as the only alternative to a necessarily long period of waiting for payment of interest upon the present income bonds, but also as an equitable adjustment distinctly advantageous to the holders of the income bonds.

Pending negotiations for the sale of the proposed new bonds, the holders of the existing mortgage bonds have agreed to accept an equal amount of new bonds as collateral security for their loans.

In the event of the formation of a syndicate for the purchase of the new bonds, the holders of the present income bonds who exchange their holdings for new preferred stock will be given an opportunity to participate in proportion to their holdings.

HARPER & BROTHERS' REORGANIZATION COMMITTEE,

By ALEXANDER E. ORR, Chairman.

NEW YORK, September 25, 1905.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE, 1887-1905.

A VERY interesting pamphlet comes to us from Charles Scribner's Sons, giving a brief retrospect of Scribner's Magazine during the eighteen years in which it has provided good literature in the widest sense to an ever-increasing public. After a short introduction the more important articles that have appeared in the magazine are classified, and brought together in this shape it is certainly a showing of which any house may be proud. The magazine has been specially rich in biographies, diaries and correspondence and reminiscences of notable people by others almost as notable. A special feature of Scribner's has always been the practical articles on the conditions of modern life and its contributions on railroads, ships, electricity, strikes, building and loan associations, trusts and various kinds of business have taught the people regularly about their own and other lands. Governments and political and social conditions have also always been impartially and fairly explained and criticized. Almost every author of renown has had novels run serially in Scribner's, and it has been unusually fortunate in the short stories it has selected and produced. Its articles descriptive of the organization, equipment and activities of the army and navy have been read throughout the world; and the wars that have taken place during the period it has covered were always brought carefully and dispassionately before its readers. The illustrations of Scribner's have always been of the best, and this pamphlet is specially interesting because it contains some of the most notable pictures that have appeared, reduced to a quarter of their original size.

HIGHER RATES OF DUTY ON FANCY POST CARDS.

IN a decision by I. F. Fischer, the Board of United States General Appraisers on September 20 overruled a protest filed by Meffert & Co., of New York, and held that elaborate postal cards made of paper and rubber must pay duty under the provision in the Dingley tariff law for manufactures of paper at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem. The board denied claims by the importers that the cards are dutiable at the specific rates provided for lithographic prints, or at 25 per cent., the rate prescribed for printed matter. The cards imported by Meffert & Co. are among the most elaborate that have so far reached this port. The cards are made of two layers of paper pasted together, with a thin sheet of soft rubber between. A portion of the message side has been cut out in different forms, such as balloons, bubbles, etc., while a small hole has been pierced in the front of the card. By blowing through this hole the rubber is distended in the form of the cut-out.

OBITUARY NOTES.

T. EDGAR PEMBERTON, dramatist and author, died at Broadway, Worcestershire, Eng., on September 28. Mr. Pemberton was born in Birmingham, July 1, 1849. In the sixties he became dramatic critic of the Birmingham Daily Post. He was the author of biographies of E. A. Sothorn, T. W. Robertson, John Hare, Bret Harte and the Kendals; "Dickens's London," "Charles Dickens and the Stage," and of a number of plays.

HARRY M. TRASK, of Silver, Burdett & Company, died in Bridgeton, N. J., on September 20. For upwards of seventeen years Mr. Trask had been a member of the business staff of his firm, and for fifteen years had been manager of the Philadelphia General Agency. In every relation both within and without the business of the Silver, Burdett Company Mr. Trask had won the confidence and affection of all who knew him. His business associates all mourn him as a personal friend.

FRANK BEARD, the illustrator, died at his home in Chicago, on September 28, of cerebral hemorrhage. He was widely known as the originator of "Chalk Talks," and for many years had been connected with The Ram's Horn, a religious publication. Beard was born in Cincinnati sixty-three years ago. During the Civil War he acted as a special artist for the Harpers and other publishers. For seventeen years he lectured at Chautauqua, and for a considerable period he was Professor of Fine Arts in Syracuse University. While connected with The Ram's Horn his cartoons, directed against the evils of the liquor traffic, were often extremely effective.

JOSÉ MARIA DE HEREDIA, the poet and member of the French Academy, died in Paris on Tuesday, October 3. De Heredia, son of José Maria de Hérédia, who was considered to be the greatest of the Spanish-American poets, was born at Santiago, Cuba, in 1842, and received his preliminary education in Havana. He went to Paris and entered the Ecole des Chartes. On leaving college he engaged in literary journalism. His style at that time was terse and incisive, and this, with the vigor of his views on contemporary writers, especially the poets, speedily attracted attention, as did also his own poems, and as his talent matured and his verse became more realistic he had many followers. He was elected to the academy in 1894, following the publication of "Les Trophées," which was much talked about. Among other things he translated Diaz del Castillo's "History of the Conquest of New Spain" and the "Life of the Nun Alferéz."

PERSONAL NOTES.

JOHN C. WINSTON, the head of the publishing house of The John C. Winston Company, returned on October 27 after a three months' absence in Europe, much improved in health and with new ideas for the coming season. Mr. Winston, as chairman of the Committee of Seventy, has taken an active part in the reform movement of Philadelphia politics.

MISS FLORENCE E. BATE, well known through her connection with McClure, Phillips & Co., and for some time proprietor of a literary agency, has sold out to Miss F. M. Holly, at 156 Fifth Avenue, New York. Miss Bate has gone to San Francisco to engage in a new work which she thinks of taking up permanently. Miss Bate's successor here, Miss Holly, has been connected for nine years with the editorial department of The Bookman, and for a year or more has been in charge of the short-story department at the office of Paul R. Reynolds.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE first annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States of America will be held at St. Louis, October 10, 11, 12. This association was organized with enthusiasm a year ago, and it is hoped that this year's meeting will bring together the fraternity from ocean to ocean.

THE CENTURY COMPANY publish to-day "The Northerner," a love story by Norah Davis; "Plain Mary Smith," a romance of Red Saunders, by Henry Wallace Phillips; "The Long Day," the true story of a New York working girl; "Washington and the West," the diary of George Washington, with notes by Archer Butler Hulbert; and "How to Study Pictures," by Charles H. Caffin.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day Henry James's recent addresses, entitled "The Question of Speech and the Lesson of Balzac," John Burroughs's "Ways of Nature," Ferris Greenslet's "Biography of James Russell Lowell," Margaret Sherwood's "The Coming of the Tide," Alice M. Bacon's Japanese stories, entitled "In the Land of the Gods," and Everett T. Tomlinson's "The Red Chief."

A. WESSELS COMPANY will publish shortly "Contrite Hearts," by Herman Bernstein, giving a dramatic picture of Russian Jewish life; "The Perfume of Eros," by Edgar Saltus, dealing with a Fifth Avenue incident; and "The Struggle," by the Hon. Sidney C. Tapp, of Atlanta, Ga., a novel said to give a startling picture of Wall Street and other American gambling combinations. They also have a long list of holiday books which will be described shortly.

THE BUTLER-WARD Co., New York City, have on hand a number of the books they were binding for Merrill & Baker, which they now propose to sell to cover in part the cost of manufacture. Among them are "Tale of Two Cities," "Ivanhoe," "Last Days of Pompeii," "Jane Eyre," "Thelma," "John Halifax, Gentleman," "The Sketch Book," "Emerson's Essays," "Prince of the House of David," and "Descent of Man." They will be sold in sets of ten volumes and the price will depend upon quantity ordered.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day "The Ballingtons," a novel of modern social relations, by Frances Squire, a new Western author; "The Race of the Swift," a book of animal stories, by Edwin Carlile Litsey, illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull; "The Ward of the Sewing Circle," an appealing story of an adopted orphan, by Edna Edwards Wylie; "Amy in Acadia," the first of a new series of stories for girls, by Helen Leah Reed, author of the popular Brenda books; and "Wilderness Babies," stories of the babyhood of sixteen different mammals, by Julia A. Schwartz.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in press "The Wisdom of the Simple," by Owen Kildare, author of "My Mamie Rose," the story of two friends who became rivals in politics and in love in New York City. Norman Duncan's novelette of New York life, called "The Mother," is leading to much discussion; and Coulson Kernahan's little book, "The World Without a Child," draws a vivid picture of the world when the Anglo-Saxon race has died out. There is a constant increasing demand for "Esperanto," the new text-book of a universal language, which promises to have a greater following than Volapuk attained in its day.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have postponed the publication of "Life and Religion," by Max Muller until October 19. This volume will contain much hitherto unpublished matter. The firm also announce for publication on the same date "The Country House," by E. C. Holtzoper. It is a complete manual of house building in the country, alternated by new Zoo photographs. The volume gives special advice on the site, planning and building of the house; on its outside finish, the style of doors, windows and fireplaces; on plumbing, heating, lighting and ventilation, water supply and drainage, and the style, size and equipment of every room. A chapter of specimen-contracts and specifications is added.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish about the middle of this month Winston Churchill's play, entitled "The Title Mart;"

also, Emerson Hough's new story, "Heart's Desire, the story of a contented town, certain peculiar citizens and two fortunate lovers," with illustrations by F. B. Masters and N. C. Wyeth. Later in the month, or in November, they will publish "Miss Desmond," a new novel by Miss Marie Van Vorst, which is said to show that brilliant young writer in a new light; also, a work entitled "The Menace of Privilege," by Henry George, Jr., which is said to cover remarkably well the whole ground of social economic conditions in America to-day, and to treat the theme in all its complications in a scientific spirit.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly, in two volumes, an "American Political History, 1763-1876," by the late Professor Alexander Johnston, of Princeton College, edited and supplemented by Professor James Albert Woodburn, of Indiana University, which presents the principal features in the political history of the United States from the opening of the American Revolution to the close of the era of Reconstruction. The first volume treats of the Revolution, the Constitution, and the growth of Nationality, 1763-1832. The second volume covers the Slavery Controversy, Secession, Civil War and Reconstruction, 1820-1876. They have in preparation "Pictures of Life and Character," a collection of 212 of John Leech's drawings with the humorous anecdotes which originally appeared in the London Punch; "Australian Life," by E. C. Buley, in the Asiatic Neighbors Series; "When It Was Dark," a novel by Guy Thorne, the theme of which is a conspiracy in modern days to overthrow the Christian religion; also, "In Fairyland," a collection of fairy stories by Louey Chisholm, with 30 full-page colored pictures by Katherine Cameron.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish shortly "The Work of Our Hands," a new novel by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays, author of "He That Eateth Bread with Me." Mrs. Keays's new novel deals with the morals of American business life and the responsibility of wealth. She has made it a dramatic picture of a young woman brought up in a God-fearing atmosphere and struggling against the hypocrisy of professing Christians and the selfishness of wealth. Her chief masculine figure, Chris Bronsart, is a strong and faithful picture of the typical business man whose absorption in affairs has undermined his conscience. Another book to be brought out early this month is "The Fortunes of the Landrays," by Vaughan Kester. It is a big panoramic novel dealing with the pioneers in the Mississippi valley, and into its story come frontier days in Ohio, the gold rush to California, immigrants on the plains, the Civil War, the boom town period in the Middle West, and the beginning of the manufacturing epoch. The author narrates the lives and loves of four generations of the Landray family, and his book is so thoroughly an American novel that it may enter the lists for "the great American novel."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just ready "Arts and Crafts of Old Japan," by Stewart

Dick, the new volume in the World of Art Series; and "The Spalding Year Book," quotations from the writings of Bishop Spalding for each day of the year, selected by Minnie R. Cowan, the latest addition to the Helpful Thought Series. To the Library of Standard Biographies Thomas Carlyle's "Oliver Cromwell" is added, which has been abridged and edited by Edgar Sanderson; and to the Library of Standard Biographies are added Lockhart's "Life of Sir Walter Scott" and "Life of Robert Burns," both abridged and edited by J. M. Sloan; and Agnes Strickland's "Queen Elizabeth," abridged and edited by Ida A. Taylor. For young people the house has just issued a new edition of "The Widow O'Callaghan's Boys," by Gulielma Zollinger, from new plates; and "Lady Dear: the little mistress of a castle in Spain," by Millicent E. Mann. To the Life Stories for Young People are added Ferdinand Schradder's "Frederick the Great," translated by George P. Upton, who also has translated Ludwig Ziemssen's "Johann Sebastian Bach;" W. D. Van Horn's "Maria Theresa" and Franz Hoffmann's "The Little Dauphin."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish shortly "The Artist's Way of Working," by Russell Sturgis. The work is addressed not to artists or art students, but distinctly to the art loving public. It tries to disclose to them in untechnical language so much of the methods by which the artist produces his effects as will enable them to enjoy and appreciate art works much more fully than ever before. It describes the processes of the sculptor, or worker in form; the processes of the painter, or worker in color, on the flat; in light and shade; the working of the different mechanical trades: building (giving us architecture when treated artistically); working in wrought metal (iron, lead, silver); working in cast metal (bronze, gold and silver); working in glass and enamel; working in baked clay (pottery, terra cotta, including tiles); working in textiles; working with the needle; and the decoration of books, both within and without. The illustrations will be a special feature of this book. They have nearly ready two new books by Esther Singleton. One is entitled "Great Portraits Described by Great Writers," and is a companion volume to "Great Pictures" and other of her books, fully illustrated with full-page half-tone plates; the other is a volume of fairy tales selected from the folk-lore of all nations, entitled "The Wild Flower Fairy Book," handsomely illustrated and decorated.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY are the publishers of the International line of Bibles, and during the four years of their possession of this line have added many new features, and have improved the various editions of the Bible published by them. They have added specialties from time to time which have attracted a great deal of attention. The "Christian Workers' Testament," which was issued two years ago, seemed to meet such a demand that they felt warranted in bringing out a month ago a "Christian Workers' Bible." Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, the distinguished lecturer at Chautauqua and former director of the Sunday-school work of the M. E. Church, undertook the task of marking the Old Testament in the same manner as the New Testament. It is indexed and marked in red on all subjects pertaining, for example, to the theme of salvation, enabling the reader to turn rapidly, and in consecutive order, to all texts bearing upon any particular subject selected. There are more than 3000 texts indexed and marked in this way. The book is published in six forms, including various bindings and with or without Teachers' Helps. The International "Complete Red Letter Bible" is also one of the new features of this year's trade. In this Bible both the Old Testament and the New Testament are printed in red and black. In the Old Testament the prophetic types and prophecies relating to Christ are printed in red, while in the New Testament the words of Christ are printed in red. This brings out in a striking manner the important portions of the Old and New Testaments. This Bible is also issued in six forms according to bindings and the helps that are issued for teachers' uses, and are printed in large and small type. Both the "Christian Workers' Bible" and "Red Letter Bible" are published in Art editions; that is, they are supplied with numerous half-tone engravings and color plates.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, (American Branch,) have now ready an entirely new series of Oxford Teachers' Bibles, with new and up-to-date helps, being a practical Bible dictionary, including index, concordance, glossary, weights, measures, coins, botany, etc., all arranged under one alphabet. These helps in one alphabet also appear in "The Oxford Sunday School Scholars' Bible," making this a very useful and practical Bible for study. Also among the triumphs of Bible making are the two new black-faced type editions of "Oxford Text, Reference and Teachers' Bibles" on fine white paper and also on the famous Oxford India papers, or printed in pearl and gotten up as a 32mo, the other in brevier as a 16mo. These books seem to solve the problem how to get large type in a handy size. There are ten editions of the Oxford Prayer Books and Hymnals, and also the recently issued Oxford Elongated Red Rubric editions. There is also a new edition of "The Altar Service," printed in great primer type on exquisitely fine paper. The house is now publishing Oxford Bijou editions of "The Four Gospels," "The Book of Psalms" (prayer-book version); "Dickens Christmas Books," and the "Ellen Terry Shakespeare," in forty volumes. The Standard Oxford editions of poetry and prose now include Browning, Burns, Byron, Milton, Scott, Shakespeare, Tennyson, Wordsworth, and "Pilgrim's Progress," with Cruikshank's illustrations. The Oxford University Press also issues Archibald Little's "The Far East," a new volume in Regions of the World series; "The Elements of Railway Economics," by W. M. Acworth; volumes 11 and 12 of the "Letters of Horace Walpole;" and "The Complete Poetical Works of Shelley," edited by Thomas Hutchinson. Beautiful editions are also forthcoming of Grimm's "Fairy Tales" and the Lambs' "Tales from Shakespeare."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

✉ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

✉ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

L. WYLL & CO., 83 Nassau St., New York

Book News for the Trade

ON OCTOBER 5th we published five books, each of which is bound to appeal to a certain class of people. Two of these books are stories, but strong, powerful novels of American life. "The Work of Our Hands" is an unusual story of a woman's struggle against the shams of religion and the selfishness of wealth, a modern story in every particular. "The Fortunes of the Landrays" gives half a century of American romance in following the achievements of this family through all the different phases of its wondrous adventures. "The Torch" and "A Modern Symposium" are sure to take their unique places in literature. "The Torch" is a literary production showing the vital relation between human life and literature. "A Modern Symposium," by the author of "Letters from a Chinese Official," will speak better for itself. "The Horse in America" will appeal to every owner and lover of a horse.

THE WORK OF OUR HANDS. By H. A. MITCHELL KEAYS, author of "He That Eateth Bread With Me." Cloth, $1.50.

THE FORTUNES OF THE LANDRAYS. By VAUGHAN KESTER. Cloth. Illustrated by The Kinneys. $1.50.

THE TORCH. By GEORGE EDWARD WOODBERRY. Cloth, postpaid, $1.30 ; net, $1.20.

A MODERN SYMPOSIUM. By G. LOWES DICKINSON. Cloth, postpaid, $1.07 ; net, $1.00.

THE HORSE IN AMERICA. By JOHN GILMER SPEED. Cloth. Illustrated, two in color. Postpaid, $2.20 ; net, $2.00.

You ought to know that "My Friend the Chauffeur," which has been on sale only a few weeks, is now printing the third edition. This will be one of the big sellers of the year. It will pay you to encourage the demand we have created.

which were bound for the bankrupt firm of MERRILL & BAKER, of New York City, and are now being offered for sale in part settlement of indebtedness due for manufacture. These books represent some of the standard works of fiction and history, and are printed on good paper, fully illustrated and handsomely bound in vellum, full gold back, gilt tops, and are much superior in every way to the ordinary cloth-bound novel. The titles of these books are as follows, viz.

Tale of Two Cities

Ivanhoe

Last Days of Pompeii

Jane Eyre

Thelma

Prince of the House of David

John Halifax, Gentleman

Descent of Man

Emerson's Essays

The Sketch Book

These sets of ten vols. each are adapted to the requirements of the book trade in general, and especially to the subscription houses for use as premiums and cash ups. They will be sold at about cost of manufacture, the price being regulated by the quantity desired.

Terms of Payment on Both Regular and Special Offers

Terms are always subject to special agreement, but in general they are as follows:

On sale for 90 days: all copies sold at the end of that time to be paid for, cash in full, pro rata, the remainder to be returned to us at our expense immediately thereafter, either upon receipt of our request or at the option of the dealer. If further pictures are ordered before the end of the 90-day period, the first lot is to be paid for before the shipment of the new lot. Prices and terms on which new lot may be furnished are a matter for future agreement.

Packing: The pictures are regularly put up in flat pasteboard boxes of 100 pictures each, 95 Sepia and 5 black, or 100 in full original colors, besides two mounted pictures for display purposes.

Window-Display: Dealers are urged to give the pictures a prominent and continuous window-display.

$100 Orders: Dealers who are selling the pictures well are urged to let us ship them in lots of 1,000. We pack the 10 boxes of 100 pictures each in a neat wooden box with sliding cover. The whole occupies only two cubic feet of space. We prepay the express and all unsold pictures are returnable to us at our expense (as stated above). The profit is then 150% on every retail sale, instead of 66⅔%.

Sample Copies: A sample in sepia or black will be sent in a mailing-tube, to any address in the world, on receipt of 20 cents in stamps (of any country); in full original colors for $1.10.

The Return of "She"

AYESHA

By H. RIDER HAGGARD

13th Thousand Already

To the thousands of readers who still remember the thrills of "She" and of "King Solomon's Mines," we commend this new book, "Ayesha," the conclusion (not sequel) to "She." The critic of the New York Tribune describes the book better than we can:

"We are sorry for the solemn souls who care nothing for the heroic savage and his axe, and we are glad that after twenty years 'She' has come back. In publishing 'Ayesha' (pronounced Assha) Mr. Haggard does more than give his public a good story to read. He brings back memories of a time when the town was quite mad about his work. It is the kind of book which one naturally reads straight through, absorbed in every incident, and intensely concerned to know just what is going to happen before the curtain is rung down."

A NEW EDITION of "RIP"

We publish to-day the most sumptuous edition of WASHINGTON IRVING'S "RIP VAN WINKLE"—with fifty illustrations in full color by Arthur Rackham.

When a member of our firm saw these pictures by Mr. Rackham, in London, a year ago, he bought the American rights of publication in book form, with the understanding that the original drawings were to be exhibited in this country—after being shown in London. Every picture was bought at this first exhibition in London, and the American display had to be abandoned. However, in the reproductions, every gradation of color is preserved, and the purchaser of the book is practically the possessor of fifty drawings by one of the most remarkable artists of our day.

LIPPINCOTT'S NEW GAZETTEER

Ready October 28

THE dictionary of universal geography that is now offered to the public is the successor of Lippincott's Pronouncing Gazetteer, which in its various editions has been before the English-speaking world for half a century. It is a new publication, printed from new type from title-page to cover. Only the framework or skeleton of its predecessor has been retained, together with the system of pronunciation introduced by that great master, Dr. Joseph Thomas.

The present publication will be found to present an accurate picture of the globe in its minutest details as it exists in the twentieth century. Each one of its 100,000 notices, varying in length from a single line to thousands of words, speaks for itself.

An important adjunct to the geographic treatment of places is the historic reference, which has been subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as the more purely geographical data, and the student in history will find in this publication a most valuable and reliable guide in the prosecution of his own particular work. The Gazetteer presents, further, the most complete and accurate guide in the pronunciation of place names that has yet appeared in the English language—in this respect holding a distinctive position of its own. Particular attention has been bestowed upon the proper rendering of East European and Oriental names,—Russian, Hungarian, Asiatic, etc. A most valuable feature of the work is the mention of classical names.

As an evidence of its comprehensiveness, it need only be remarked that the present work contains upward of 27,000 titles that do not appear in its predecessor.
